

It's time to enforce the Clean Air Act in Texas

Lorraine Moore o Stanley Spruiell

11/13/2009 10:34 AM

Sent by: Sierra Club Membership Services
<membership.services@sierraclub.org>
Please respond to Lorraine Moore

Nov 13, 2009

Mr. Stanley Spruiell

Dear Mr. Spruiell,

The Texas Commission on Environmental Quality (TCEQ) is broken. I applaud EPA's proposed ruling that major portions of the TCEQ air permitting process does not adhere to the Clean Air Act, and should be thrown out.

That was a good first step. Now is the time for the EPA to take bold action by:

- Halting any new air pollution permits from being issued by TCEQ utilizing TCEQ's current illegal policy
- Creating a moratorium on the operations of any new coal-fired power plants in Texas until the TCEQ cleans up its act by operating under the Federal Clean Air Act standards
- Requiring coal companies clean up their old, dirty plants -- no exemptions, no bailouts, and no special treatment by reviewing all permits issued since the TCEQ adopted its illegal policies and requiring that these entities resubmit their applications in accordance with the Federal Clean Air Act.
- Put stronger rules in place in order to reduce global-warming emissions and to make sure new laws and rules do not allow existing coal plants to continue polluting with global-warming emissions.

Our focus really should be on investing in clean energy technologies. Texas has abundant wind and sun and abundant land for wind farms and solar fields.

We should be phasing out coal as an energy source, not promoting it and the TCEQ should be leading the way.

Sincerely,

Ms. Lorraine Moore
138 Crofton Ave
San Antonio, TX 78210-1127